AMERICAN WANDERLUST.

A Habit Which Strengthens the Cohesive Unity of the Nation.

Less than half the members of the United States senate and house of representatives are native born in the states which they represent. Nothing could more clearly show the alert activities of the American people and that constant intermingling of the inhabitants of the several states which adds so much to the cohesive unity of the nation. The boy who goes to a distant state often accomplishes more than the one who goes straight on in the footsteps of his father in the home village. Even Daniel Webster was not born in the old Bay State whose influence and dignity he so well sustained and whose people honored him so sincerely when his great life closed.

This wandering from state to state has resulted in the organizing in New York city of many state societies which aim to further together the natives of their respective states as a unit to revive the pleasant memories of the old home days, with their thousand clinging ties.

What would happen if the American people should cease to wander about the country? It is a question often asked. It is said that an easterner never amounts to anything until he goes west and that a westerner has to come east in order to obtain his full stature mentally. The northern man is advised to go south to learn of the gentle and cheerful bearing of the southerner to go north to add more fire to his blood. There can be no doubt that this constant evolution has encouraged the birth of new ideas, just as the whirling of the kites into a developed a boy into our present wonderful moving pictures, which give us glimpses of life in motion all over the world.—Joe Mitchell Chapple in National Magazine.

THE HURRYING BARBER.

Speed Manifested More in the Motion Than in the Results.

"Barbers," remarked the man with the short hair, "are born unable to hurry. Just you go into a shop, and the next day, wanting a hair cut, and ask the barber how long it will take. He told me, 'Oh, about twenty minutes' and I said to go ahead."

"That barber honestly believed he was hurrying, but he couldn't hurry out his little scalp-scraper about the back of the neck they are all so fond of doing, and he had to cut the hair as if he were chiseling priceless marble. When it got to be about half an hour I said to him, 'You're a pretty fast fellow of time, aren't you?' He came back with something about not wanting to turn out a poor job."

"I've known it to happen often in the case of shaving. When you tell a barber to hurry he dashes around on the tiled floor at lightning rate of falling, and he splashes the lather into your eyes and your mouth, but the fact remains that he takes as much time as usual to rub the lather into your face and as much time to shave you."

"I begin to believe there is some sort of rule regarding hair that all barbers observe, because I have timed them. Once I asked a barber to hurry shaving me, and he had all the motions but took up just as much time as when he was slow at his usual gait."

"I imagine they believe the customer will be satisfied with the appearance of speed, and that's the reason they run around so and breathe heavily as if winded when changing from one side of the chair to the other."—New York Sun.

Making and Earning Money. "What is the difference between making money and earning money?" asked the youth.

"Sometimes the difference is a trip to the penitentiary for counterfeiting," answered the home grown philosopher.—Chicago News.

Enlightening Role. "Father," said little Rolo, "what is an ecologist?"

"An ecologist, my son, is a bird-matcher that thinks it was the whole life works."—Washington Star.

Miller a Jewel.

Due to the sensational game he has been putting up since his debut in the big league, there are many people who declare that Jack Miller is the best second baseman that the Pittsburgh Nationals have had since the days of Bierbauer and Ritchey. There is no question that he is a better all around man than either of the two mentioned great as they were. He is a fast fielder, a reliable batter and good base runner. The Pirates have a jewel in him. In a few years he will be acknowledged one of the brightest stars in the big league.

Boston Got Pitcher Pope Cheap. The Boston American league club secured Larry Pope, one of the Milwaukee pitchers, at its own price when last fall the Boston club was willing to pay Milwaukee $3,000 for his release. George Huff of the Chicago club, liked Pope's work very much and recommended that he be purchased, but at a price of not less than $25,000 to $30,000. The deal fell through, and Pope remained with the Milwaukee club. The past spring Pope had a lame shoulder and was not in condition to pitch his best for several weeks.

It was necessary for Manager McClosky to get one of the pitchers out in order to keep within the player limit, and Pope was the man to go. Manager McClosky advised Fred Lake, the Boston manager, to take Pope and give him a thorough trial, as he has great confidence in his ability to make good. If Pope is a success with Boston the Milwaukee club will be relinquished for the young man. If not, why, the Boston club will be a little out—Pope is only a youngster and is very promising. He has a splendid drop curve and also speed when necessary.

Family Floriculture. George Blank, the stage manager, is a lover of nature and a lover of overcoats and umbrellas. Recently during a violent rainstorm he called on his mother, entering her presence wringing wet.

"George," said she firmly, "you ought not to wear yourself in such weather. You will get pneumonia."

"But, mother," exclaimed George, with a theatrical wave of his hand, "why should I fear the rain? Does it not nurture the grass? Is it not life to the flowers?"

"It is a long time," said the good woman, closing a window, "since you were a flower."—Success Magazine.

UNCONSCIOUS WORRY.

Born of the Habit of Taking Things Too Seriously.

A great many people worry unconsciously, says O. S. Marden in Success Magazine. They don't understand why they are so tense in the morning, why their sleep was so disturbed and troubled.

This mental disturbance is often caused by the habit of taking things too seriously, carrying too great a weight of responsibility. Everybody who sees people who take life too seriously, who are so full of anxiety and worry, and who are so full of responsibility and who are so full of worry, will be amazed to find that things come out much better than they anticipated; to find that the great unseen power that governs our lives through a wilderness of trial and tribulation into the open has guided our life ship through the fogs of difficulties and of sorrow through storms of hardships and losses, safely into port.

The pilot does not lose heart when he cannot see his way. He turns to that mysterious compass which sees as plainly in the fog and guides us faithfully in the tempests as when the sea is like glass. We are in touch with a power greater than any compass greater than any pilot, a power that can extricate us from the most desperate situation.

He Did His Part Thoroughly. In order to avoid an argument with a woman suffragist on the subject of her loyalty a happy bachelor gallantly proposed in the truth of her assertions.

"But, sir," sternly remarked the speaker, "your admission is anything but creditable to you. What, for instance, have you ever done for the emancipation of woman?"

"Madam," responded the gentleman with a polite smile and a bow, "I have at least remained a bachelor!"

Seemed All Right. "Mamma, why don't you want me to play with that Kodak boy?"

"Because, dear, I know the family. He hasn't good blood in him."

"Why, mamma, he's been vaccinated twice, and it wouldn't take either time."—Ladies Home Journal.

HOOKING ALLIGATORS.

A Florida Sport With an Element of Uncertainty in It.
"Hunting alligators at night with a battery lantern and shotgun is more sporty than what is called a gator hunt in Florida," said an old Floridian who is visiting New York.
"I mean the feat of capturing an all gator alive and then towing the live gator through the water and then from what is called in Florida a gator hole."
The gator fishermen first find the hole, which is indicated by an opening in the surrounding grass in the midst of a dense growth of vegetation, where the ground is more sandy than the alligator in his hole and out. Sometimes these gator holes are in the surface of a cave in the bank of a stream and may be fifteen or twenty feet deep, and so it is not an easy matter to get the animal out.
The fisherman is supplied with a long pole with a metal hook on the end.
He takes a strong rope and throws it about the entrance of the hole, and the fisherman with the hooked pole dives the den and waits and listens.
If he hears a gator in the hole he throws the hook by hooking him by the girth in a rapid flash grabs the hooked pole and is pulled from the den. It is with uncertainty that the alligator is pulled out. It is not known whether the catch is large or small.
The fisherman does not wish to get into shape to run or to fight. Often the gator comes, believing and tearing land.
After the gator is dragged to the surface he is his rapid turns and rolls and finally twists himself up in the rope or snare that has been previously prepared. With the assistance of the fisherman in the party the gator's legs and mouth are tied and the gator is a prisoner.
The gator is for the most part caught in marshes where the ground is soft and slippy and too wet for either horse or wagon to enter. The fisherman is compelled to carry the catch to higher ground, where it is loaded into the waiting wagon, and the hunt is ended.—New York Sun.

Death of Mrs. Cecil

Mrs. Rosa Eliza Cecil died at her home near St. Rose on last Sunday morning of infirmities due to old age. Mrs. Cecil was one of the oldest residents of the county. She was born February 27, 1826, in the neighborhood where she was reared and lived during the whole of her life.
Her father, Clement Riney, was one of the first settlers of the county and was a large land owner in the St. Rose neighborhood. On November 30th, 1850, she was married to T. W. Cecil who preceded her to the grave several years ago. She was a good woman possessing a mild disposition and unassuming manner, attending to her own duties and giving herself no concern as to the duties of other people, thus throughout her whole life she was continually drawing to herself, the friendship of all with whom she came in contact, and giving others no cause for grievance against her, friends once acquired were friends for life. She was the mother of eight children, namely Marion and Tina Cecil, Mrs.
Mattie Higdon, Mrs. Bettie Badgett and Miss Savilla Cecil, of this county, M. S. Florence Thompson, of Louisville, Mrs.
Sallie Burns, of Jeffersonville, Ind., and Mr. Clem Cecil, who died a few years ago.

Death of John Hardesty.

It will be with feelings of profound sorrow, that our readers will learn of the death of Mr.
John Hardesty, who departed this life on last Tuesday morning. While he had been in failing health for several months, his death came as something of a shock for he was sitting on the veranda in front of his house on the night before his death. Mr.
Hardesty was one of the oldest residents of the Polin neighborhood, having been born there March, 18 1826, and lived there throughout his life. His ancestors came to this county from England and settled in Virginia.
Mr. Hardesty was a son of the late William Hardesty, who died several years ago, and is favorably remembered by Washington county people because it was he who was present at the marriage of Thomas Lincoln and Nancy Hanks, and remembered that Lincoln was born in the little log cabin on the bank of the Beech Fork in this county.

He had two other sons besides Mr. John Hardesty, namely Jas. L. and Mr. W. T. Hardesty. His daughters were Mrs.
Polly Gray, Mrs. Bettie Haydon Mrs. Sallie Gray and Mrs. Lucy Sale.

The family was raised in the neighborhood where they were born and Mr. Hardesty attended the rural schools of the county until he was about twenty years of age when he married Miss Fanny Snyder to which union the following children were born, Jas. B. Hardesty, of Nelson county, Mrs. Mary Williams, Mrs. Mattie Bayne and Mrs. Sarah Hayes, all of whom with his wife survive.

Norman in the county perhaps was better or more favorably known. His kind and genial disposition won him many friends. As a business man he had the confidence of all with whom he dealt. He will be much missed by his many friends who for years have called "him Uncle John."

Funeral services were conducted at his late residence yesterday by Rev. G. S. King, after which a large crowd of friends followed the remains to Mt.
Zion cemetery.

Engraved Gems of the Ancients.
Engraved gems are among the most interesting objects of art inherited by us from the ancients. Though many of the carvings and intaglios were engraved on precious stones, and years ago, they are still as clear and fine as if they were cut yesterday.
The designs engraved on these stones indicate that the old Greeks and Romans regarded them as charms against accident or misfortune. This superstition generally took the form of fingering for representation of certain animals. Sailors affected the dolphin because it was believed to be the mariner's friend. Women, so far as I have been concerned, preferred the representation of the prolific erigs of the sphinx, which was a symbol of fruitfulness because of the great number of its eggs. The ant was worn as an emblem of industry. By the frog was indicated the idea of resurrection, because that interesting batrachian revives its youth each spring by shedding its old skin.

Pertaining to Fish.
Blessings on thee, little man! Go dreading when you eat. Never over 2,000 years ago, their rule not to run away from school. They bait and sidle pole and then stand the deepest hole where the wary troutlets hide by the canyon stream's side. You'll get livid at home of course, and you'll suffer great regrets, but when daddy sees you drying fish and say, "By Jingo!" and his red and red fish and catch and a little better on the bottom of the pot before putting the milk in and you need not worry about the contents of the pot.

Keep Milk From Spoiling.
Either rise the pan with cold water or put a little butter on the bottom of
of the pot.

LARGE CROWD

Hears Judge I. H. Thurman
at Court House Monday

The old Court House was filled to its utmost capacity and every window and door was crowded on last Monday when Judge I.
H. Thurman fired his first gun in the campaign. For several months many of those who have been opposing Judge Thurman have made themselves busy circling against his judicial record. The many unreasonable and untrue charges were fully refuted in his able speech of more than two hours.

We rejoice to say that those who came expecting to hear vituperation and abuse of Mr.
Lewis went away disappointed for there was nothing said at throughout the whole speech at which any person could take any offense. The appeal was dis-passionate and straight to the point. He stated at the outset that he wished to take no advantage of his opponent, and that Mr. Lewis had been invited to attend and that a division of time would have been accorded, but that Mr. Lewis had declined to accept.

The speech was very scholarly and eloquent which was a sufficient answer to the charge of ignorance that has been made against him and the evident sincerity and straightforward manner with which he faced the many unjust charges that have been made and fully answered the charge that he was prejudiced or biased. Each charge was taken up separately and fully answered.

Though the speech was a long one, the Judge held the attention of the vast audience throughout and was frequently interrupted by applause. The language was eloquent and so plain that any person, even though unwilling to understand was compelled to do so. The enthusiasm of the crowd made it evident that Democracy is neither dead nor sleeping.

Lived 152 Years.

Wm. Parr-Bagland's oldest married son, John, 120, was wedded in the fields till 132 and lived 20 years longer. People should be youthful at 80. James Wright of Springfield, Ky. shows how to remain young. "I feel just like a sixteen year-old boy," he writes, "after taking six bottles of Electric Bitters.
For thirty years Kidney trouble made life a burden, but the first bottle of this wonderful medicine convinced me I had found the greatest cure on earth." They're a godsend to weak, sickly run-down or old people. Try them. See Haydon Robertson Drugstore.

Two tablespoons of butter, half a cup sugar, beaten to cream. Add one well beaten egg, one-quarter teaspoon salt and one-half cup rolled oats. Drop on buttered tin and bake in a quick oven until brown and crisp.

of the pot.
